

From Editor Desk....

The second wave of Covid is on and it has affected a lot of us in our day to day practice. But at the same time it has given opportunity to the authors to compile their work and make it see the light of the publication.

This issue just like Joli, the festival of colours is colourful too having vivid articles from the cervical spine to lumbar spine fusions, few authors have sent their research articles of cruciate repairs. Trauma is always fascinating.

It will be a worth reading issue and will have great impact factor.

I take this opportunity to congratulate our Editorial board members and Associate Editors to be conferred with the ISERF Award for year 2020-21.

We request the authors to please contribute with original research and articles which have a impact on research. We are striving hard to get the international recognition of IJOS and your contribution will be worthwhile.

I as the Editorial board Chairman along with my team and as the President of Innovative Scientific and Education Research Foundation wish you all a very Happy Holi and happy learning.
